THE MATT STOLZ PRIZE FOR POLITICAL THEORY

This spring, at graduation, the Department of Political Science will be handing out the second annual Matt Stolz Prize in Political Theory. The prize will go to an undergraduate who demonstrates excellence in the field of political theory. The prize will be given out at the Political Science Graduation Ceremony on May 19th.

The Matt Stolz Prize is named after a revered professor in the Political Science Department who sadly passed away last year. Professor Stolz dedicated decades of his life to this program and also pursued a life long love for political theory. The prize is meant to honor his commitment as well as to celebrate his life and his service to this department.

To apply for this prize, undergraduates should submit two (2) copies of a sample of their writing (of approximately ten pages) in the subfield of political theory (most likely a paper submitted to a political theory class) by Friday, April 24, 2009. Award will be based on a committee evaluation of the papers and in consultation with the entire faculty.
