

Challenges Facing Chinese Political Development

Editor: Sujian Guo and Baogang Guo

“China’s tumultuous twentieth century has been followed by years of astonishingly rapid growth, but growth itself poses deep challenges for China’s economics, politics, and basic value system. The authors of this volume combine disciplinary expertise with direct experience of China’s daily reality to present a broad array of studies of the challenges that will shape the future of China and thereby touch the world.”

—BRANTLY WOMACK, University of Virginia

“As a ‘rising’ China becomes increasingly engaged in international affairs, it has become imperative to understand China’s evolving aspirations and foreign policies and its growing influence on a complex array of global problems. This book makes a significant contribution to this understanding. Well-researched and well-argued chapters consider a wide range of critical issues affecting the international system and U.S.–China relations, including China’s management of its ‘peaceful rise,’ its development and use of ‘soft power,’ its impact on nuclear proliferation on the Korean Peninsula, its policies toward the Middle East, and its impact on the global energy markets.”

—ROBERT ROSS, Boston College

Challenges Facing Chinese Political Development is a topical examination of some of the most recent developments in Chinese politics. Featuring a roster of international scholars, the book comprises an assortment of chapters focusing on a particular dimension or specific issue of political culture, political economy, foreign policy, and environmental and social challenges. The editors, Sujian Guo and Baogang Guo, have divided the essays into five parts: political legitimacy, political economy, external challenges, environmental challenges, and social challenges. Each of these dimensions serves as a window through which the reader can glimpse various challenges in Chinese political development in the new century. Challenges Facing Chinese Political Development is suitable for students of all levels and researchers of Chinese politics.

SUJIAN GUO is director of the Center for U.S.–China Policy Studies at San Francisco State University, editor of the Journal of Chinese Political Science, and president of the Association of Chinese Political Science.

BAOGANG GUO is associate professor of political science at Dalton State College and president-elect of the Association of Chinese Political Studies.

GUO AND GUO

Challenges Facing Chinese Political Development

Challenges Facing Chinese Political Development

Jeffrey Becker

Anna Bretell

Baogang Guo

Sujian Guo

Enze Han

Wenshan Jia

Joel Kassiola

Xiaohang Liu

Huisheng Shou

Andrew Swift

Logan Wright

Chengqiu Wu

Yanmin Yu

edited by

Sujian Guo and Baogang Guo

For orders and information please contact the publisher

LEXINGTON BOOKS

A division of Rowman & Littlefield Publishers, Inc.

4501 Forbes Boulevard, Suite 200

Lanham, Maryland 20706

1-800-462-6420 • www.lexingtonbooks.com

ISBN-13: 978-0-7391-2095-8
ISBN-10: 0-7391-2095-6

